

Fashion 19/08/2010

Manolo Blahnik publishes "Manolo's new shoes"

Marga Villanova - 27/07/2010

Spanish shoe designer Manolo Blahnik now has her very first book out on the market

"Manolo's new shoes" includes over 130 sketches and drawings made by Blahnik, which combines the essence, style, originality, sensuality and exuberance of his best creations and, in the end are after are the first step in the design process with the ingenuity of the designer and the desire that they cause in people. The book revolves around the interests, passions and influences of Manolo Blahnik and is organized by the following subjects: art history, cinema, which includes sketches for the film "Marie Antoinette" by Sofia Coppola or the varied and abundant models have been used for the character of Carrie Bradshaw, who confessed addicted to Manolos, of the popular television series and subsequent movie "Sex and the City" - the architecture, theater, flora and fauna. Leading figures in the world specializing in fashion journalist Suzy Menkes and Grace Coddington, Milena Canonero, Amy Fine Collins and Carlos Garcia-Calvo have collaborated in preparing the book providing valuable information about the world of Manolo Blahnik Blahnik where the same has been commissioned to write the introduction.

"Manolo's new shoes" will go on sale next September 13, 2010 in stores that the company has around the world - in Spain will be available in the establishment of Calle Serrano, 59 Madrid - at a price of € 29.95 so.